After Stealing a Number of Pistols and Buckskin Suits]

From a Wild West Show They Take to the Road and Hold Up Pedestrians-They Assume the Names of "Ruttlesnake Dick" and "Oklahoma Sam."

VALPARAISO, Ind., April 26.-For some time highway and farmhouse robberies have been very frequent in this and adjoining counties. Thursday the sheriff and a victim arrested two boys for these crimes. After arrest they confessed to three highway robberies and two burglaries of the Grand Trunk freight depot here. From the depot they took thirteen rifles and buckskin suits belonging to a wild west show.

They sought to be copies of Rattlesnake Dick and Oklahoma Sam. They had scratched those names on their revolvers. For two weeks they have been going around the country stealing, sleeping in the woods and barns. They are the two "tramps" who terrorized citizens of New Buffalo, Mich., last Saturday by imitating drunken cowboys. About 200 people then chased them for miles. In escaping the boys swam a river.

A man they robbed on the highway on the eastern edge of this city, two weeks ago, met them near the same spot, came to town and gave the alarm. The sheriff found them beside the road asleep. One, Mert Capers, is the son of a respected old soldier. The other, Dick Thomas, is the grandson of a Valparaiso widow, and related to very prominent Michigan and Canadian railroad officials. The officers just learned that they attempted to rob two girls Wednesday night, near here. One girl tore off a mask and recognized one of the robbers.

WILL DURANT ESCAPE?

A Note Book Becomes an Important Factor in the Case-Blood Stains on Rev. Gib-

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26 .- Interest in the mystery of the murder of Miss Lamont and Miss Williams does not abate. Durant, the medical student, is still held to be the murderer of the girls in the church.

The microscope has shown that a supposed varnish stain on the door easing of Rev. Gibson's study was made by human blood. Dr. Cheney, of Cooper college, said Wednesday night he had found nothing to establish Durant's statement that he attended the lecture on the afternoon of April 3.

Durant always took notes at lectures and was careful in transcribing them, hence his notebook was in great demand. It can not be found by the police, and it is either in his own or his attorney's possession. Dr. Chency believes the character of his notes themselves would demonstrate their genuineness.

It would be impossible, he says, for a student to write fictitious notes of a on their face. Officer Dennis Welch, of Alameda, called at police headquarters and made a statement showing that Durant frequently visited Miss Williams in Alameda.

During the holiday season, about Christmas and the New Year, he had seen them together on several occasions. Officer Welch will be an important witness for the prosecution, as Durant emphatically denied to Chief Crowley after his arrest, that he was acquainted with Miss Williams.

IN EUROPE.

Startling Events Unless Russia Reconsiders.

An Understanding Exists Between Japan and Great Britain.

The Attitude of the United States, it is Thought, Will Decide the Ratification of the Treaty With China-Japan Has the Best of It.

Loxpon, April 26 .- The attitude of the United States will probably decide the question of the ratification of the pending treaty of peace between China and Japan. The alarm in the diplomatic capitals of Europe, which has found expression in the protest by Rusia, Germany and France, is due to the fact, which there is now little attempt to conceal, that a close understanding has existed for several weeks between Japan and great Britain. It is not generally known, however, even in diplomatic circles, that both Japan and England are using strong endeavors to persuade the American government to become a third member of an informal alliance, which will resist any attempt to interfere in the terms of peace which have been agreed upon by the belligerents.

The foreign offices at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris discovered a few days ago that they had been completely beaten in the game of diplomacy by England, and Japan furnished fresh proof of her amazing eleverness by making an ally of her most jealous European rival. The protest of the continental powers is now aimed really against England, and it becomes of great significance and importance on that account. Japan, under the circumstances, is almost certain to resist interference, and It is now generally believed that forcible meddling would promptly bring England to the active support of the mikado's government. The most strengous efforts are being made to induce the United States to give her at least moral support in securing the reasonable fruits of her victory over China. Japan believes that, backed by English-American support. she could defy all others-even such a strong combination as Russia, Germany and France.

The feeling is universal in Europe, however, that Japan is complete mustal powers have been entirely overreached, and that, unless Russia curbs her natural chagrin, there will soon be a startling series of events to record, He was consoled by the presence of not only in the far east but in Europe
